Who can be a sponsor?

To be a sponsor you must be:

- an organisation, including New Zealand registered companies, incorporated societies, and charitable trusts, or
- a government agency, including government departments and crown entities.

Sponsor's responsibilities

When you agree to be a sponsor, you undertake and agree to:

- make sure the sponsored person has financial support for the duration of their stay (maintenance costs like food, clothing and health care – things necessary for their health and welfare while in New Zealand), and
- make sure the sponsored person has suitable accommodation for the duration of their stay (whether providing it directly or paying for it), and
- guarantee to provide the cost of return airfare for the sponsored person, if they do not have the means to pay themselves (or refuse to pay for it), and
- guarantee to provide the costs associated with the sponsored person's deportation if they are deported (costs like locating, detaining and maintaining the person, as well as travel costs), and

When you agree to be a sponsor, you are responsible for the sponsored person from the day they arrive in New Zealand until the day they get a new visa with a different sponsor or no sponsor, or the day they leave, whether they are on a valid visa or in New Zealand unlawfully. You cannot withdraw your sponsorship. As you are sponsoring a multiple entry visa, you are responsible for any debts they may incur in New Zealand while they are on that sponsored visa.

What happens if you do not honour your sponsorship?

If the responsibilities listed above are not met, this is considered a breach of your sponsorship undertakings.

If any costs are incurred, you are responsible for these costs, and if you fail to repay the costs incurred by the sponsored person, a debt for the amount of those costs will then be due to the New Zealand Government or the third party.

If you breach your sponsorship undertakings, you may not be able to sponsor again in the future.
