Under section 133(2) of the Immigration Act 2009

In confidence

• Read carefully the front page and the attached explanatory notes (pages 25–28) before you complete this form.
• Type or write in ink.
• This form must be completed in English.
• Supply TWO passport-sized photographs of yourself.
• You must answer ALL questions even if you intend to submit a written statement.

Recognition as a refugee in New Zealand

A refugee is defined by the Refugee Convention, as amended by the 1967 Protocol, as a person who

• “owing to well-founded fear of being persecuted for reasons of race, religion, nationality, membership of a particular social group or political opinion, is outside the country of his nationality and is unable, or owing to such fear, is unwilling to avail himself of the protection of that country; or

• who, not having a nationality and being outside the country of his former habitual residence, is unable or, owing to such fear, is unwilling to return to it”.

To be recognised as a refugee in New Zealand you need to demonstrate that the Refugee Convention definition of a refugee applies to you.

If you believe that this definition applies to you, you may claim refugee status.

Recognition as a protected person in New Zealand

New Zealand is a signatory to the Convention Against Torture and Other Cruel, Inhuman or Degrading Treatment or Punishment ("CAT") and the International Covenant on Civil and Political Rights ("ICCPR").

To be recognised as a protected person in New Zealand you must demonstrate substantial grounds for believing you would be in danger of being subjected to:

• torture; or
• arbitrary deprivation of life; or
• cruel, inhuman or degrading treatment,

if deported from New Zealand.

Immigration Advisers Licensing Act 2007

Under the Immigration Advisers Licensing Act 2007 it is an offence to provide immigration advice without being licensed or exempt. If your immigration adviser is not licensed when they should be, Immigration New Zealand will accept your claim but not correspond with your adviser.

Legal assistance and immigration advice

You have the right to contact a lawyer or licensed immigration adviser to help you to claim refugee and protection status or to complete a Confirmation of Claim to Refugee and Protection Status in New Zealand (INZ 1071) (this form) and to represent you in your claim to refugee and protection status. You may qualify for legal aid to help pay for the services of a lawyer.

Claiming refugee and protection status

A refugee and protection status claim is made as soon as a person indicates, either orally or in writing, to a representative of the Ministry of Business, Innovation and Employment or to a member of the New Zealand Police that they wish to seek refugee and protection status in New Zealand.

There is no fee for claiming refugee and protection status.

After you have claimed refugee and protection status you must confirm your claim by completing a Confirmation of Claim to Refugee and Protection Status in New Zealand (INZ 1071).

How to confirm your claim to refugee and protection status

This form must be completed in English. Unless you have a good command of English, you should obtain the help of an interpreter or translator in completing this form. Your local branch of Immigration New Zealand (INZ) will be able to advise you about how to arrange this help if you do not have the help of a lawyer or other representative to arrange this for you.

You should try to answer all questions. If you do not know the answers to any of the questions, write “not known”. If any questions do not apply to your situation, write “not applicable”. Some questions ask you to give specific details of your situation. You should give these details and all other details which apply to your situation. You should sign and date every page of the form. If there is not enough space provided on the form, give your answers on a separate sheet of paper. Sign and date these sheets of paper and attach them to the form. Please try to answer all questions. It is not acceptable to write “refer statement”.

You must also give a separate, full, written statement of your experiences and circumstances that have led you to claim refugee and protection status. Your statement should be written in your own words. You should sign and date each page of your written statement. You may attach other documents which you think are relevant to your claim to refugee and protection status. Originals should be provided. If you do not want to send in the original, you should attach certified copies. A copy of a document is certified when a lawyer, Justice of the Peace or other authorised person certifies that it is a true copy of the original document. Certified translations of these documents should be provided if the documents are not in English. A translation is certified when it is done by a recognised translator who certifies that they have correctly translated the document.

If any of your family members in New Zealand also consider they may qualify for refugee and protection status, they must complete and file a separate Confirmation of Claim to Refugee and Protection Status in New Zealand.
You must lodge your passport or other travel document that you used to travel to New Zealand, even if it is false. This will be returned to you unless it is false. You must also supply two (2) passport-sized photographs of yourself.

About the information you give in confirming your claim

Immigration New Zealand needs the information you give in confirming your refugee and protection status claim to assess your claim. The information you provide as part of your refugee and protection status claim is subject to strict confidentiality obligations, which are imposed under section 151 of the Immigration Act 2009. If you are concerned about the confidentiality of the information you provide as part of your refugee and protection status claim you should speak to your legal representative or immigration adviser about this.

Warning

In the Confirmation of Claim to Refugee and Protection Status in New Zealand form you must complete a declaration where you declare that all the information you provide in the form and any accompanying material is true and correct. A person who makes a false statement in a declaration is guilty of an offence punishable by a fine or imprisonment.

How your claim to refugee and protection status will be considered

Your claim will be considered by the Refugee Status Branch (RSB) of INZ. Your claim may also be referred to the local representative of the UNHCR for comment.

RSB may ask you for further information about your claim. RSB may also interview you about your claim. You will have the opportunity to provide further information and to comment on potentially prejudicial information.

You will be notified in writing of the decision on your claim. You will have the opportunity to appeal a decision declining your claim subject to sections 194 to 198 and section 200 of the Immigration Act 2009.

Interview

It may be necessary for you to attend an interview for the purpose of determining your claim. If you are required to attend an interview, you or your representative will be notified by letter of the details of time and place.

If you cannot attend an interview, you must notify INZ immediately. If you fail to attend an interview without good reason the officer may proceed to determine your claim nonetheless.

If English is not your first language, INZ will provide an independent interpreter for the interview free of charge unless you request otherwise and your request is acceptable to the interviewing officer. You may be accompanied to the interview by a representative of your choice. Legal Aid can be applied for to pay the cost of a lawyer, if they are your representative. If you choose to use a representative who is not a lawyer, you will need to pay their costs.

After the interview, the officer assigned to your case may send you or your representative a report of the interview for comment before making a decision on your claim. You will be notified in writing of this decision.

Further information

INZ may request further information from you about your claim. That request will be made in writing and may be sent to you or given to you at an interview. If you do not provide the information in the time frame specified the officer may proceed to determine the claim.

You may continue to provide further information in support of your claim up to the time your claim is actually determined.

Prejudicial information

Any information which is or may be prejudicial to you or your claim and which is obtained by a refugee and protection officer and which the officer proposes to take into account in determining your claim will be disclosed to you unless the information was obtained from you or is publicly available or the disclosure of the information would be likely to endanger the safety of any person (in which case you will be notified of the non-disclosure of the information). You will have a reasonable opportunity to comment on this information. If you do not comment on the information the officer may proceed to determine the claim nonetheless.

Appeal of decisions

If a decision is made not to recognise you as a refugee or protected person you may appeal within 10 working days (or five working days if you are in detention at the time the decision is made) of the date of the decision to the Immigration and Protection Tribunal (IPT). The IPT will then determine your appeal.

Temporary visas

If you hold a temporary visa (visitor, work or student), it is important to keep your visa valid while your claim to refugee and protection status is processed. You can do this by lodging an application for a temporary visa on the normal application form for your type of visa, together with your passport or certificate of identity and a passport-sized photograph, before the expiry of your existing visa. Refugee and protection status claimants are exempt from paying the normal application fees.

You may wish to lodge an application for a special work visa. The grant of such a work visa will be at the discretion of INZ, who will assess your application against your personal circumstances. If your application is successful, you will be granted an open work visa until your claim has been finally decided.

You may lodge your application for a visa, in person or by mail, at any branch of INZ.

Provided you keep your visa current, you will be granted further visas for the duration of your refugee and protection status claim, including any appeal to the IPT. This provision does not apply to subsequent claims.

Present immigration law makes it difficult to obtain a visa if you let your visa expire. Applicants who claim refugee and protection status after their visas have expired may not be given visas.

Permission to attend English language courses will usually be given by letter on request.
